

Leadership In The Field- 3 Part Series

Communication Skills- February 27th

Discover the four basic communication styles, how individuals of each type interact with others and what motivates them. Participants will also develop an understanding of their own communication strengths and weaknesses through the DiSC Personal Profile System. As a result, participants will strengthen their communications internally with other employees, as well as with your customers, vendors, suppliers, and other contractors.

Success Job Planning- March 13th

This module demonstrates how to manage obstacles that get in the way of a successful project. Learn how to develop and use effective short interval schedules, and what must be a part of every scheduling effort. Learn to manage daily tasks, prioritize critical issues and follow-through to get results.

Leadership in the Field- March 27th

This module describes the importance of leadership in the construction environment and examines the components of leadership. In this module, attendees will experience a hands-on demonstration of the effects of sound leadership practices and additionally learn the importance of teamwork, planning, and motivation as they relate to leadership.
